Tending to the herd

Living the life of

El Pastor

Out among the high-technology businesses and new concrete streets of Rancho Cucamonga's developing south end, a youth named Ramon is practicing the old vocation of tending a herd of grazing sheep.

The shepherd's presence in the midst of developments of the future is not an anachronism. His sheep have the very modern duty of keeping the grass and weeds from overgrowing the vacant lots as developers arrange financing and draft designs for the future buildings.

"It's really neat because it serves two purposes, grazing the sheep and keeping the lot clear," said Jack Moriarty, the manager of marketing for Associated Southern Investment Co..

Moriarty's company recently bought the abandoned vineyard at Sixth Street and Pittsburg Avenue and took out insurance on the shepherd and his flock of 300.

The previous owner had signed a contract with Chino Sheepman Antonio Rodriguez allowing Rodriguez's sheep to graze on the property and Moriarty said his company would probably continue the arrangement.

The shepherd working for Rodriguez, a Spanish-speaking youth named Ramon, stayed out with the sheep for two days on the property, sleeping in a tiny trailer and making sure a portable water tank is keeping the flock's thirst quenched in the summer heat.

The nearby high-tech warehouses and businesses are quiet and do not disturb the munching sheep.

According to Rodriguez' wife, Suzy, there are five or six men, mostly from Europe, who tend flocks on vacant fields in cities throughout the West Valley.

Spain and Portugal are the birthplaces of most of the shepherds in the West Valley, according to Tom Bennett, president of Sheepmen of Southern California.

"They came here and originally worked as herders," Bennett said. "Most of them work like a dog and within 10 or 15 years either start their own business or buy out their boss."

The sheepmen pay the landowners for use of the property and must always be out in front of the herd finding another property to keep them fed, Bennett said.

The arrangement is mutually beneficial to the property owner because it would not be economical to have a lawn-mower cut the foliage on large properties, he said.

"How else are you going to comply with the weed abatement laws without spending a dime," he said.

Some of the sheepmen believe development of the West Valley will drive them out of the area, Bennett said. But he believes that while large herds may have difficulty finding sufficient grazing land, smaller flocks will be able to continue operating in the area.

"Some of the large properties held by real estate companies for future development will be with us for awhile," he said. "I know of four huge parcels that will sit there undeveloped for 10 years."

Still, Bennett joins other sheepmen in mourning the loss of each property that is developed.

"It is a shame in California, that they put people where agriculture used to be. Without agriculture people starve to death," he said.

Sheep are efficient users of the undeveloped land because they can eat just about anything, including rough scrubs and sage brush, and convert it into food and fiber for humans, Bennett said.

Depending on the time of year and the density of the foliage, Bennett estimates the average ratio of land-to-sheep is 1,000 sheep per 40 acres.

With the development and division of larger parcels, Bennett and other sheepmen are having to deal with ten property owners where they used to pay rent to one.

"It's a little harder, but hard work is what sheepmen thrive on," he said. □

On The Cover: Ramon Gutierrez, 24, stands watch over a flock of sheep grazing on an abandoned vineyard now owned by an investment company in the south-end of Rancho Cucamonga. The native of Colima, Mexico (far left) plays his guitar in a small trailer on the property. The guitar is missing a string but he said he plans to fix it when he gets back to "civilization." One of Gutierrez's most important jobs as a shepard (above) is to make sure his flock has enough water to wash down the sagebrush and wild-grass. The shepard (left) walks through the flock to see that all is well.

Children's librarian enjoys job

By Terri Tirella

From genetic counseling to children's librarian seems like a large gap to bridge, but it was a natural change for Upland librarian Marie Rooth.

Rooth, whose life has been directed by the fates, found her way to California and Upland Library as sort of a fluke.

"My husband was in the military when we came to California; we found out later we were supposed to go to Oregon," Rooth said.

Rooth said when she first learned they were moving to the Los Angeles area all she could think about was smog, flat land and the city's crime rate. "I just knew the Hillside Strangler would be waiting for me when I passed the state line."

She said she was pleasantly surprised with the area. "If I miss snow, I just drive north, throw on the chains and I'm there; and the next day you can go to the beach," Rooth said.

Rooth had majored in medical biology in college and had decided to go into genetic counseling. "I was all set to go to grad school, but I got married. With my husband in the military we traveled quite a bit."

Since she had so much time on her hands, she decided to go back to college. "My friend suggested library science as a good way to use my biology education and I enjoyed it."

Annual summer reading programs begin at libraries

By Terri Tirella

Summer is always a busy time for the library. Both Rancho Cucamonga and Upland libraries have their annual summer reading programs under way.

This year's theme for both libraries is "Reading is as Much Fun as a Barrel of Monkeys."

"If the children go the whole summer with no reading it takes from four to five weeks in fall to get back to the level they were when they left," said Marie Rooth, children's librarian for the Upland Library.

Upland Library offers five different games during its summer reading program. "We use a game format because it eases up on homework or academic (pressures) but is structured with a beginning and an end," she said.

The program is self-paced and is designed for youngsters in

Checkpoints to guide you in choosing summer camp

By Willard Abraham
Copley News Service

Q. Please give me some idea of what to look for in a summer camp. Our 10-year-old hasn't gone to one yet, but we're thinking about sending him this year. Your suggestions of what to check on (and what to guard against) would be so helpful.

A. A few years ago I saw a reference to a guide titled Summer Camps & Programs, which included a checklist that could help increase a youngster's benefits and enjoyment and perhaps save some money. One of its authors was Alice Goldsmith. Here are some of the suggestions for parents to consider:

1. Watch out for brochures that promise everything.
2. The most important factor is the staff. Who are they? What's their background? What do the former campers and their families say about them?
3. What is the ratio of counselors to campers? One-to-five may be about right.
4. Are there children attending who are the age of yours? There should be.
5. Check on the living accommodations. How many children per cabin and what bathroom facilities, for example.
6. Are medical services available?
7. Check on the cost of the camping experience cost — the camp's fee, travel, clothing, other expenses.

Programs, meals and opportunities for parental visitation and observation can be among the other items worth checking. Parents also might consider the distance from home, length of the sessions, camp size, facilities, and safety factors and personnel as they relate to water activities and equipment for the children.

Q. May I please add something to the answer you gave the parent of a 3-year-old boy who is scared by the loud laugh of a family friend?

You suggested control on the part of the friend or keeping the youngster away from him. Did you consider the possibility that the child might have an acute hearing problem and loud noises may bring extreme pain? That could be the reason for his acting scared, and might suggest the need for a hearing examination.

A. Your idea may be right on target. I'm sorry I didn't mention the hearing problem possibility. I should have, especially because I'd been chairman of a university department of special education for many years.

Q. A black family moved into our neighborhood recently. The problem is not with all members of it, but with the fact that one of their children — a little boy, 7 years old — is in the same school room as our son.

They have become good friends, and it is going to be difficult to separate them unless I just come down hard and insist that it must be done.

I really have nothing against the child. He seems clean and even more polite than most children his age. His father is a professional person.

What can I do to make sure that they don't become permanent friends?

A. Your question deserves another very brief one: Why? Please write again and verbalize your objections, which are implied in your letter. Then let's talk about it.

Youngsters are winners at Special Olympics

Everyone was a winner at the Special Olympic program held at East Avenue School in Etiwanda.

Members of the Rancho Grande Kiwanis of Rancho Cucamonga volunteered their time and provided hot dogs, hamburgers, drinks, balloons and Jon the Clown, to make the event successful.

The children participated in races, jumping, and ball throwing events; and each student received an "Athletic Award" at the closing ceremonies. Others received "Good Citizenship Awards" for their positive characteristics shown during the school day.

"Retarded is too harsh a word to apply to these youngsters, they just have special education needs," said Ros Dong, principal and program director of East Avenue School.

"They receive that extra attention here and eventually they progress and are able to graduate from here to join a regular campus," Dong said. "We used to have six classes and now we are down to three, so our program works."

Dong said most of the children's parents chose not to attend the school's special event.

"A lot of these children live in foster homes. It is not because they come from broken homes or are unloved by their natural parents, but because they need that extra care," Dong said. "In activities such as the Special Olympics or the PTA we have trouble getting either sets of parents to participate. If they did they would see how happy their children really can be."

Operations Manager Dan Jones sits in the new paramedic ambulance Canyon Medical Services Inc. is stationing for primary service in Upland, according to co-owner Kurt Latipow, although it will be available for all emergencies.

Foothill Knolls students write own great American novels

By Suzanne Sproul

Thirty Foothill Knolls School students took a bit of imagination, sprinkled it with some creativity and bound it all together in their own versions of the great American novels.

The fourth graders in Rachel Patterson's class spent the past month putting together their stories. Each of the books was written and illustrated by individual students. The typing was done by Patterson.

Throughout the end-of-the-year creative writing class project, Patterson said she could see the development of each of her students' minds.

"We have focused on the students' writing skills all year. As the year went on they were developing higher skills. As they built up their skills I thought they should put together their own books," Patterson said.

Each book has been bound in cardboard and laminated to make it more permanent. Some of the titles include, 'How I Captured Bigfoot," by Christopher Robles and "The Giant and the Money Tree," by Shirley Oertwis.

Society takes a step back to Medieval Ages

By Suzanne Sproul

Armor clashed amid the muffled squeals of ladies and damsels, alike, as the battle in Upland's Magnolia Park proceeded.

One armored knight pitted against another in combat hoping to prove who was the better man.

Knights in shining armor, damsels in distress and a more genteel lifestyle. The things of which dreams are made for many a youngster and oldster.

Taking a step back in history to the romantic, colorful and dangerous time of the Medieval Ages. For the Society for Creative Anacronym, historical authenticity is important.

The society staged a tournament in Magnolia Park to help educate the public about the Medieval period, but mostly just to exchange information among its own members and to celebrate the anniversary of the Heather Wyne.

Upland, Ontario, Rancho Cucamonga and the Pomona Valley comprise the Heather Wyne shire or area group.

Although society activities are rich in Medieval lore, the group also deals with the period from the 800s to the 16th century.

Nineteen years ago a woman, who no one seems to remember not even local society members, in Berkeley decided she wanted a special birthday celebration. She wanted to return to the days of yore when knights in shining armor rescued fair maidens. So she and some friends put together a rag-tag party featuring Medieval characters.

The group enjoyed it so much it decided to repeat the celebration again the next year. The Society for Creative Anacronym was born.

The society is a non-profit organization which tries to learn more about the Medieval Ages by re-creating it.

Susan McNamee is the head of a modest household in Rancho Cucamonga. A household is the smallest group involved with the international society.

McNamee is her "mundane" name. To all of the tens of thousands of society members she is known as "Lady Claryce Lost Love."

"I patterned my persona after an Elizabethan lady," McNamee said.

All society members adopt a particular persona or character they portray at society get-togethers.

Details are important. Personas are carefully researched to ensure that a society member dresses in the appropriate way, uses the proper language and participates in the right activities, McNamee said.

"Some people in the society develop and register their own coats of arms. None are duplicated," she said.

Maintaining the "period" is stressed. "That means no blue jeans, no beer cans or no ice chests. The society tries to keep everything as realistic as possible," McNamee said.

McNamee got involved in the society in 1978. She used to work at the Renaissance Fair conducted each year in Agoura. A friend told her about the society and McNamee said she thought it would be fun to become a member.

"There are a lot of different motives for joining the group. I think the lords enjoy the fighting or martial arts aspect of the society and the ladies enjoy the romantic setting," she said.

Knowledge of history is helpful but not important. "Everyone knows a little about everything. You learn," she said with a laugh.

She teaches Medieval cooking and folklore and dabbles in needlework.

"The Renaissance Fair

involves a lot of acting. This is real or at least as real as we can make it. This is by ourselves for ourselves," McNamee said.

Gerry Adams joined the society while studying at Cal Poly Pomona. He is a computer science major but he enjoys the camaraderie.

"There should be about 100 people at the tournament. Most are local people but some have come from all over California," Adams said.

Adams has been involved in the society for almost three years. "I went to a tournament and it looked like it would be fun," he said.

After the day-long tournament society members didn't just pack up and go home. Keeping in the true traditions of the Medieval period, the group had a "revel" or a party in modern terms.

"It's just eat, drink and be merry time after the tournament," Adams said with a laugh. □

Bridal Bouquets

by Deborah Armbruster

FRONT AND CENTER

Centerpieces set the mood for any party, whether it's your shower, rehearsal dinner or wedding reception. Here are some helpful hints for choosing the perfect centerpiece for every occasion.

Choose a low floral arrangement for the center of a table so that people can converse over it. A single, simple bud vase can be the most elegant center for a small, crowded table. Floral arrangements can also include candles or lanterns for a soft glow.

If you or your bridesmaids are carrying flower baskets, carry the theme through by using baskets for your centerpieces. Proud of your beautiful bouquets? Then allow room on your head table or cake table for them to be part of the decor while you're dining.

If you're having a buffet, you might make a centerpiece of beautifully molded and glazed breads, or artfully arranged vegetables. Remember, though, that people will hesitate to eat anything that looks so beautiful!

The centerpiece of any wedding is you, the bride. For the best in bridal wear, visit your experts at Deborah's.

ALLERGY

Researchers have recently developed a comprehensive allergy screen which for the first time accurately tests for both immediate and delayed allergies. The test is affordable. It can be performed with a single blood sample for a large number of food and environmental substances. The procedure offers new hope for millions of allergy sufferers, even those who have already been tested with other methods.

According to the Journal of Allergy and Applied Immunology, allergic reactions are probably the most frequently unrecognized cause of illness in the U.S. today.

Aside from commonly recognized allergic reactions such as hives, hayfever, headaches, and digestive disturbances, researchers have now correlated allergies with various glandular disturbances, (including chronic weight gain), with depression, anxiety and many other problems.

The testing procedure described above is called the Micro-S-Elisa. Although it will soon be available throughout the country, not all doctor's offices provide this service.

FOUR HOT WAYS TO COOL DOWN YOUR ELECTRIC BILL.

If your summer electric bills seem to increase with the temperature, here are a few suggestions that could lower your electric cooling costs. But read them carefully. Certain measures may be more cost effective than others, depending upon where you live.

1. High-Efficiency Air Conditioner.

When you replace your old air conditioner, choose a high-efficiency air conditioner. It can keep you cool using less energy and that can lower your bill. And, the added efficiency can even pay for itself in the long run. Plus, Edison helps with a rebate of $421 to qualified customers.

2. Pre-cooler.

If you have a central air conditioning unit and live in a very warm climate, adding a pre-cooler can improve your system's efficiency. Pre-coolers attach directly to the condenser section and pre-cool the incoming air so your air conditioner can work on less energy. Edison offers a $100 cash rebate on approved pre-coolers.

3. Central Heat Pump.

A heat pump is a year-round heating and cooling system. In the summer, it works as an air conditioner by removing heat from inside your home and pumping it outside. In the winter, a heat pump extracts heat from the outside air and moves it through your home. This is two to three times more efficient than traditional systems. Install a new heat pump and you may qualify for a $915 cash rebate. Or replace an older model with a new, high-efficiency heat pump for a $421 rebate.

4. Free Energy Tips Booklet.

"Hot Tips for a Cool Summer" will give you even more ways to save on your cooling bills. It covers things you can do to limit your need for air conditioning and tips on the most energy-efficient cooling appliances. Best of all, it's free. Call 1-800-952-5062 and a Southern California Edison Representative will send you our free booklet right away.

Call 1-800-952-5062 for a free Home Energy Survey.

You must have a Home Energy Survey recommendation prior to the purchase and installation of any of these improvements. If you're an Edison customer, one of our Representatives can show you which of these energy-saving improvements and practices work best for you. They'll also tell you how to qualify for rebates, tax credits and low interest financing. Cool down your summer electric bill. Call and arrange your free Home Energy Survey today.

first-through-seventh grades. There are four optional games and the readers build their own summer package by choosing among them.

Board games are two of the summer programs at Upland. One involves readers making their way around a numbered board as they read books; the other is a subject board game.

In it, players earn points by reading a book in the subject field their markers land on.

Subjects include poetry, mythology, sports stories, world history. "things kids usually do not get into," Rooth said.

Picture book reports are another part of the summer reading fun at the library. "Kids draw and color a picture about the book they read and write five sentences about the book. It's geared to younger grades," she said.

The library games are designed with fourth graders in mind, Rooth said, "but we've had more and more children from first through third grade. It's amazing where their reading skills are."

Another game, which focuses on developing research skills for young readers is Weekly Trivia. "Questions will have to do with a jungle theme," Rooth said. The youngsters can look anywhere for the answers, except for asking an adult.

"We have questions like 'Name the two apes that have learned how to communicate,' or what was the monkey's name in the film with Ronald Reagan," she said.

The Secret Book Contest is another game for young Upland readers. "We give a clue each week for older and younger kids; the winner is the one who guesses the title of the book first," she said.

Youngsters can monitor their progress on the library's computer. Parents should accompany them on their trips to the library, Rooth said.

For preschoolers, Upland Library has a Good Listener's Club, which is an at-home program.

"Their summer goal is a jungle mobile, for every 10 titles read to them, the listeners get an animal to color and cut out for their mobile," Rooth said.

To complement the summer reading program, weekly events including puppet shows, a magic

Students have taken the books home.

"I knew it would be a very lengthy assignment and something they should share with their parents," Patterson said. "I also thought we should celebrate their hard work and accomplishments."

So they celebrated. Students put together a slide presentation of their work throughout the project and showed it to their parents.

Tali Friedman and Kevin Steele read their books to a gathering of teachers and parents during a "meet the author" session.

Tali is the author of "The Inch High Kid," a tale of two boys who accidentally become involved with a shrinking solution.

Kevin is the author of "Rick Hunter the Starfighter." Kevin said he, too, would like to be an astronaut when he grows up or even a starfighter "if we're that advanced by then."

Edwin Ellett wrote a tale about "professional" swimming detectives who solve "A Swimming Mystery." "I am very proud of my young authors. I hope the project will motivate our kids to continue to write and I think it will," Patterson said.

Presidential awards given to students

First there was the president's physical fitness awards initiated by John Kennedy. Now President Reagan has begun another series of awards designed to recognize academic achievement.

Fifteen Magnolia School students in Upland have received a personal congratulations from Reagan in the form of academic certificates for their hard work in school. All are sixth graders.

Award requirements state that an elementary student must have a B plus average throughout his time in school and received a score in the 80th percentile on any nationally recognized achievement test.

"I think it's wonderful for the president and the Department of Education to recognize the good things these kids are doing in school. I'm proud of them," Principal Roberta Hennigan said.

Hennigan said the school's students have participated for years in the physical fitness awards. The school has done well with those awards and wanted students to have the opportunity of being recognized for their academic achievements, too, she said.

Magnolia will participate in the program again next year, she said.

The presidential award is designed to motivate students to strive to do their best academically, said the Secretary of Education Theo Bell in award literature.

"Through our children we will see today's dream become tomorrow's reality. As a nation, we must encourage our young people to reach their full academic potential by recognizing their achievements and devotion to the pursuit of learning," said Reagan in the same literature.

NEIGHBORS IN THE NEWS

Scott Preston Ungles, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ungles IV of Alta Loma, has earned the highest advancement award offered to scouts — the Eagle award.

Ungles will be recognized for his achievements in a ceremony Tuesday, June 25 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at 7 p.m.

A member of Troop 644, Ungles is one of approximately two per cent of Boy Scouts who attain Eagle rank, said

Wayne Brindley, scoutmaster.

Each candidate must earn 21 merit badges and successfully complete a community service project to earn an Eagle.

Ungles project was to make and install numbered, redwood mile markers along the jogging trail on Euclid Avenue from Foothill Boulevard to Twenty-fourth Street.

Ungles has served as patrol leader, senior patrol leader and is now junior assistant scoutmaster. He has earned the "On My Honor" award and is a member of the Order of the Arrow.

The young man is a member of the Alta Loma Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. He attends Alta Loma High School where he has earned a letter in track. He will be a sophomore this fall. Looking towards a career in law enforcement, Ungles hopes to be accepted this summer in the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Explorer Scout program.

Ungles has a brother, Mark, grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Ungles III of San Marino and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Osborn of Terre Haute, Ind. His great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.. R. Osborn, also of Terre Haute.

Suntanning increases skin cancer risk

By Lucretia Steiger
Copley News Service
First of three parts

When sunlight hits your skin, a chain reaction begins.

Melanocytes, tiny cells in the bottom layer of the skin, begin producing the pigment melanin. This pigment is transferred from the melanocytes to the upper layer of skin cells to act as an umbrella, absorbing ultraviolet rays in sunlight and shielding the chromosomes of cells from damage.

Without this protection, UV radiation causes skin to become leathery and old looking. It also increases the risk of skin cancer.

"When you get excessive sun exposure, it stimulates this pigment to darken, and as the skin gets darker, it will absorb more ultraviolet light," said Dr. Howard Steinman, chief of dermatology at the Veterans Administration Medical Center and an assistant clinical professor of dermatology at the University of California at San Diego School of Medicine.

"Not only that, but with increased ultraviolet radiation, the melanocytes are stimulated to send even more pigment into the cells. It's the body's way of saying, 'Hey, we're getting too much light, better protect our chromosomes from this.'

"It's the long-term effects of prolonged habitual suntanning that leads to premature aging of the skin and also significantly increases the risk of developing skin cancers," Steinman said.

"There is some evidence now that in addition to the more benign forms of skin cancer, persons who experience sunburn on a regular basis are more prone to develop malignant melanoma. This is a particularly malignant form of skin cancer which is often fatal if not detected and treated early enough."

There are, however, ways to prevent these undesirable results, and Steinman lists these precautions:

- To give your body more time to increase melanin, increase exposure time in the sun gradually.
- Avoid excessive sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., when ultraviolet rays are strongest.
- Apply sunscreen liberally and frequently when exercising or working in the sun. Sunscreens contain chemicals, the most common being PABA or para amino benzoate acid, which absorb ultraviolet light and prevent it from getting to your skin.

Manufacturers rate sunscreens according to their Sun Protective Factor, which tells the consumer how much protection they offer. An SPF of 1 or 2 is low, while 15 is high, according to a chart developed in Europe years ago and approved by the Food and Drug Administration for use in this country in 1977.

For example, your skin without protection will get slightly red in half an hour. By applying a sunscreen with an SPF rating of 2, you could double the amount of time you could spend in the sun per day before burning, or one hour. A SPF rating of 15 would give you 15 times that amount of exposure to the sun, or 7½ hours, assuming the sunscreen was not washed or sweated away.

If your skin reddens in less or more time than the estimated half an hour, base your figuring for a sunscreen on the actual amount of time such reddening takes.

Opaque sunscreens such as zinc oxide, the familiar white cream that surfers often wear on their noses, protect you by preventing any ultraviolet light from reaching the skin.

- Wear appropriate protective clothing such as a hat, a long-sleeved shirt and long pants when working or playing in the sun.

- Be aware of reflective surfaces. Ultraviolet rays will bounce off such surfaces as water, snow or concrete with as much as 85 percent of the strength of the sun's direct rays.

- Remember that ultraviolet rays can penetrate clouds and overcast sky conditions even when the temperature is cooler. Also, the higher the altitude, the less atmosphere there is to absorb ultraviolet radiation. There is an incremental increase in ultraviolet light for each increase in altitude. That is why skiers can get terrible sunburns.

- Avoid tanning salons and excessive use of sunlamps, since ultraviolet rays from an artificial light source are the same as those in natural light.

Even with all these precautions, you still might be better off avoiding a sunburn or tan if you have fair skin, blue or light eyes, or a family history of skin cancer.

"Anytime you have a tan, it is an indication that you have gotten a lot of ultraviolet light exposure," Steinman said. "You should be aware that you are increasing your risk of aging your skin and skin cancer anytime you go out and tan. Sunbathing for sunbathing's sake is foolish. Wear an appropriate sunscreen to protect your skin.

"A small amount of pigment in the skin is not harmful if it is gradually added to the skin. Wear the sunscreen with the right SPF number and let the skin adapt until it gradually darkens. As you are darkening, it is a marker that you are getting damage to the skin. You are getting ultraviolet irradiation in an amount significant to change the normal physiology of the skin."

Black skins are no exception, he said, although those with black skin require far less protection since they already have much more pigment in the skin. But black skin grows darker in the summer and can become sunburned.

Steinman pointed out that prizing a suntan is a fairly recent development.

"Up until the last several decades, it was the workmen and people of 'the lower socioeconomic classes' who worked outdoors and had suntans and aging skins. It's curious that now it means a decided affluence, as if you have the time and money to fry your skin in the sun."

MOOSE MONEY

Pleasure is an essential part of work

By Gordon Smith
Copley News Service

Denis Waitley has heard all the jokes about his latest book "The Joy of Working."

That the words "joy" and "working" are mutually exclusive. That anyone who thinks otherwise needs professional help, and not from a plumber.

But Waitley, a nationally known management consultant and human behavior expert, firmly believes that joy is an essential part of any job. If you haven't found pleasure in your work yet, he advises, you better start looking for it.

Because the cruel reality is this: You're not going to be able to retire early, and you're not going to find a satisfying, high-paying job that only requires you to work a few days a week. According to Waitley, increasing competition from other countries has rendered such dreams practically obsolete.

"We've got to understand that people in other countries, particularly Asian countries, are willing to produce higher quality workmanship for lower pay," he said. "And as a result, most of us are going to have to work a lot harder and longer than we thought we would have to."

So it's time to say sayonara to that dream of lolling on a tropical beach, and hello to (shudder) trying to enjoy your work. Or, as Waitley puts it: "We should try to enjoy the five-sevenths (of each week) we spend at work, rather than simply the two-sevenths we spend trying to escape from it."

And you thought fractions were tough in elementary school.

Waitley thinks most people don't find joy in work because they have taken jobs simply to make money. "It isn't that we discovered what we're really good at, or took a job we really got excited about. It's just a job we took for the money."

"And with the children on the way, and the house payments and the high cost of living, the whole situation just got away from us."

"But instead of considering that, people are constantly saying to themselves, 'How many years do I have left before I can do what I want?' Which is usually your hobby."

"So your avocation becomes a goal. Your off hours become your goal. And you fall into the same trap you did when you were a child. As soon as you get your work done, you can go out and play. As soon as you finish the drudgery of work, you can go where the action is."

The problem with that kind of thinking is it locks you into a life of frustration, Waitley pointed out. After all, most of your days

It's up to the individual worker to find happiness on the job

By Gordon Smith
Copley News Service

Sure, the company you work for should do its utmost to make you a valued, happy employee. But according to Alan Davidson and George Pratt, psychologists and management consultants, it's primarily up to you to find happiness at work.

"The individual worker has to assume the responsibility of making a job worthwhile," says Davidson.

Adds Pratt, "In the vast majority of middle-class jobs it is possible to adapt yourself ... so that you are happy and perform well."

Here are some of the things Davidson, Pratt and author Denis Waitley suggest you can do to find happiness on the job:

Take time for family and activities. If you're happy when you're not at work, you'll be

are spent at work.

"The Joy of Working" (Dodd, Mead & Co., 1985; $15.95) is the latest in a seemingly endless series of motivational self-help books that have been published in recent years. Most of the books have focused on advising people how to achieve wealth and/or career success.

Waitley says his book is different — to some extent. "I don't think my book has anything new in it," he said.

"I travel a lot with (other management consultants and self-help authors), and we all think the same way. We all tend to rehash in our own vocabulary things we've read and reread before."

"But 'The Joy of Working' is not as oriented toward achievement or material goals as many of the other books. It's about how to enjoy where you are, rather than how to get to where you want to go."

Waitley said companies should try to make their employees happy by giving them real responsibility, and by providing benefits such as stock option plans.

But, he emphasized, it is mainly up to employees to bring joy to the workplace by changing their attitudes, seeking challenges and evaluating what they really want.

"A person needs to discover what they're good at as early as they can in their lives, so they don't get caught up in frustrated talents and unmet needs. You should do something you like to do and are good at," he said.

New challenges can come from learning more about your industry, and believing in your ability to successfully tackle even difficult jobs. Waitley said it helps to actually imagine yourself achieving specific successes, such as making a sale or finishing an excellent report. (In "The Joy of Working" he cites a study that showed basketball players who imagined themselves making baskets were able to improve their shooting accuracy as much as a group that actually practiced shots.)

As for changing your attitude toward work, Waitley says you should wake up to cheerful music each morning, give yourself pep talks, smile at co-workers and avoid "group griping."

"Even if it sounds as corny as the seven dwarfs whistling while you work, it's a beginning," he explained. "The only way I know how to bring about a major change is to start with superficials."

"The Joy of Working" also advises people to take risks, but the book is deliberately vague about what kind of risks to take.

Waitley noted that early in his career as a management consultant, a paint contractor asked him to give a motivational speech to a group of house every one of them quit.

In retrospect, Waitley thinks he did a disservice to the painters because he didn't explain what options they had or how they might find more satisfaction in their current jobs.

The experience made him wary of giving people specific advice without knowing a lot of specifics about them.

"The Joy of Working" doesn't offer any easy remedies for those who are struggling to support their families while mired in boring, low-paying jobs.

The book is primarily aimed at two types of white collar workers: those who have jobs utterly unsuited to their talents, and those who are reasonably suited to their work but find it boring or even maddening.

Social Security checks in retirement viewed

Copley News Service

Q. I will be 62 years old in about two months and I want to retire at that time. How much money can I make in 1985 and still receive my checks? — T.D.

A. There is a special rule that applies to people only in the year they retire. Under this rule, even though earnings exceed the annual exempt amount, a benefit can be paid for any month the person's wages do not exceed the monthly limit and the person does not perform substantial services in self-employment.

In 1985 the monthly wage limit is $610 for people 65 to 70 and $450 for people under 65.

After the year you retire the amount you earn is based on an annual amount.

Benefits are payable after you reach 70, regardless of your earnings.

Q. I would like to know how worker's compensation will affect my Social Security disability checks. I am going to get a lump sum settlement. — E.G.

A. A reduction in the disabled worker's benefit may be made for any month before the worker attains age 65 to fully or partially offset a worker's compensation benefit.

The reduction is made only if the total benefits payable to the worker for Social Security disability and worker's compensation exceed 80 percent of his or her "average current earnings" before onset of disability.

A worker's compensation lump sum settlement is prorated to reflect what the monthly payments would have been.

Q. I have been receiving my Social Security check on the third of the month for the last two years.

This month my check did not come so I called the Social Security office and was told to call back on the 6th of the month. Since the 6th was on Saturday I called on the 8th and received the non-receipt forms, which I completed and returned immediately.

How long must I wait for a replacement check? — R.M.R.

A. You should receive a replacement check in approximately two weeks. However, when you report the missing check to your Social Security office they will be able to give you a better idea of the time involved.

You also should consider the possibility of direct deposit of your check.

Q. I am 72 years of age and currently am getting $156 a month from my deceased husband's Social Security record. I remarried approximately three years ago and my current husband receives Social Security on his own account of $756 a month.

Is there any way I can get half of my current husband's Social Security? I have never worked. — M.L.

A. Since you have been married to your present spouse for over one year you may be entitled to an additional Social Security payment on his record.

You should go to your local Social Security office. Be sure to take your marriage license and your husband's Social Security number.

happier at work, too.

Eat right and exercise. You can improve your state of mind by improving your health.

Vary your routine. Try driving or walking a different route to work. Once you get to work, read or take a walk during your lunch break instead of simply eating.

Flex time. Approach your boss and see if you can arrange to work the same number of hours but on a schedule that is more convenient or appealing to you. If you can convince him it will make you more productive, he might give it a try.

Avoid gripe sessions. "Pity parties" are almost never constructive because they don't focus on resolving problems. They also promote negative thinking.

Seek out positive, interesting people. You'll learn by talking to them and might even discover a new hobby or career.

Give yourself pep talks.

Humor. Try to find it in your work. It's there somewhere.

Safety tips issued from area police

The following are safety tips from the Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's Station. The 24-hour telephone number that Rancho Cucamonga residents should use when they need to call the sheriff's department to request a deputy is 988-6571. The 911 emergency telephone number should only be used for life threatening emergencies.

This week the Rancho Cucamonga Deputies will be issuing citations to motorists who violate the right of way or the speed limit laws, especially in the area of Hellman Avenue and Base Line Road.

The Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's Department wants to remind motorists that most rear-end collisions result from following too closely or tailgating. A good method to prevent this is called the "Two-Second Rule." Watch the vehicle ahead of you pass a reference point, such as a telephone pole, and begin counting the seconds. If you pass the reference point before you finish counting two seconds, you are following too closely. In less than ideal situations, allow a three to four second following distance.

'America the Beautiful' slide program slated

A panoramic view of "America the Beautiful" will be presented in a slide program at the Upland Public Library on Wednesday, July 3 at 2 p.m.

Col. Dana Alexander has combined slides and music to show highlights of national parks and monuments. Scenes include glacier-topped Mt. Ranier, the blue water of Crater Lake, the brilliant hues of Bryce Canyon National Park and Niagara Falls at night.

Alexander, a local resident, has held a double career, first in the United States Army after graduating from West Point, then at Chaffey College as a teacher of physics. Since his second retirement, he has started a hobby of photography of his travels.

The hour-long program will be given in the library's multi-purpose room, at 450 N. Euclid Ave. There is no admission fee. For more information, call 981-1033.

Chaffey High School summer hours given

Summer hours for Chaffey High School will be Monday through Friday, from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., through Sept. 6. The switchboard will also be open the same hours.

Summer school will be in session through Aug. 2.

Casa de Moneda de Mexico, the Mexico City Mint, has a long history — 450 years, in fact. But until now it never has struck any proof coins.

That will all change this summer when gold and silver proof coins are struck to commemorate Mexico's role as host for the 1986 World Cup soccer championships.

Gold and silver coins to commemorate soccer matches? Perhaps North Americans take soccer rather lightly, but worldwide it has a greater following than any other sport.

To put that in perspective, let's relate the World Cup final match to the much-heralded Super Bowl. It's estimated that 250 million people tuned in to see the Super Bowl game last January, but the final game of the last World Cup in 1982 was seen by 2.5 billion!

And that's why Mexico will pay special tribute to the World Cup with gold and silver proof coins. Sixteen such coins — four gold and 12 silver — have been authorized.

The gold coins will be struck in denominations of 250 pesos and 500 pesos, with two designs of each denomination.

The silver coins will be issued in 25-, 50- and 100-peso denominations and will be distributed in four series of three coins each.

The first proofs will be available this summer, with new issues released periodically until the World Cup competition in Mexico in the summer of '86.

All coins will feature an identifying legend reading COPA MUNDIAL DE FUTBOL and the words MEXICO '86. The designs will salute the soccer theme as well as incorporating artwork representative of the country's Indian heritage.

The 450th anniversary of Mexico City's Casa de Moneda will be commemorated on the reverse.

The Bank of Mexico has granted Paramount International Coin Corp. of Miami, Fla., the worldwide distribution rights outside of Mexico.

Interest in Mexican coinage has been extremely high in recent years, in large part due to the popular 1-ounce silver coins, the Libertad Onzas, first minted in 1982.

With the worldwide interest in soccer and the Mexico City Mint's long heritage of strikingly beautiful coinage, the Latin nation no doubt can look forward to strong sales of the new coins: Total mintage figures have not been announced.

Fall will mark the 12th edition of the Standard Catalog of World Coins, by Krause Publications of Iola, Wis.

Summer fun at Magnolia Rec

After three moves in two years, Upland Recreation Department finally has a permanent home.

More than 150 people, city officials, recreation instructors and residents toured the new recreation facility at Magnolia Recreation Center, 651 W. 15th St. in Upland, last Thursday.

The grand opening ceremonies included a brief message from Mayor Richard Anderson and entertainment provided by local groups. Pioneer Junior High School's Jazz Band, under the direction of Craig Olson, provided music for the festivities and the Upland Gainers, the recreation department's gymnastic team put on an exhibition for the event.

The opening ceremonies were held outdoors and were followed with a tour of the new facility, including an Alta Loma Charter Lines Luxury Bus. "We thought we'd give people a chance to see one of our buses we use for our trips," said Cyndi Testa, recreation supervisor. The recreation department offers trips to Laughlin, Del Mar, white water rafting, and Las Vegas turnarounds.

Displays of the various leisure activities and recreation classes were exhibited in the south hall of the new addition.

"Basically we wanted to give people an opportunity to people to see what we have here and want classes we have to offer," Testa said.

Because of the additional space now at Magnolia Recreation Center, the recreation department has been able to add a few more classes and have a more relaxed schedule. "Now we have a little time to set up and clean up between classes," Testa said. "Before we had classes back to back."

New classes added this summer are Needle Punch crafts, the "You can sit on my quilt" class, piano and organ classes and additional offerings of other more popular activities.

Magnolia Recreation Center formerly had a lounge area, a classroom, a kitchen, bathrooms and a storage area. With the new addition, program space for classes has been expanded by 2,000 square feet.

The new facility includes an additional kitchen and storage area, as well as 2,000 square feet of office space.

The recreation offices were previously housed at the old Upland library location on C Street. When the Police Department expanded to that site, the recreation department was forced to consolidate office space into the former police locker rooms. Programs were cut because of loss of activity space.

Originally the expansion at Magnolia Recreation Center was to include more classrooms or activity space, but later it was decided to move office space to the new addition to make the "whole recreation operation more centralized," said Larry Thornburg, director of recreation.

"We hope more community groups will start meeting here," Thornburg said. "We also will have more room to rent for family reunions and wedding receptions."

ENTERTAINMENT & DINING GUIDE

Hank Williams Jr. beat the odds to find fame

By Robin Welles
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Most entertainers who follow in the footsteps of famous fathers or mothers fail miserably.

Probably the greatest exception to the rule is Hank Williams Jr., whose legendary father popularized country music back in the late 1940s with songs like "Your Cheatin' Heart." Hank Sr. died on New Year's Day 1953 at the height of his fame.

But Hank Jr. has become a legend himself as a composer/singer of country music. He has just finished his 50th album, titled "Five-O," for Warner Bros. It's a mix of fresh new songs by Williams and some others like Warren Zevon's "Lawyers, Guns and Money," and Fats Waller's classic "Ain't Misbehavin'." Also included is Williams' current single, "I'm for Love."

If anyone ever was destined to stand on his own two feet as an entertainer, it was Hank Jr. His mother, Audrey Williams, also was a country singer.

Hank Jr. was playing a guitar

as soon as he was old enough to hold one, and subsequently learned how to play the banjo, fiddle, piano, bass and steel guitar, harp and other instruments. His first performance was at age 8 in Swainsboro, Ga., where he wowed the audience with "Lovesick Blues."

And he grew up in Nashville, the heart and soul of country music.

He was only 14 when he did the sound track for "Your Cheatin' Heart," the film biography of his father. Then began the long string of albums. Billboard magazine named him top male country artist in both 1972 and 1982.

Hank Williams was great all right — but so is his son.

EURHYTHMICS — Be Yourself Tonight (RCA) — More rock and rhythm and blues spice this one by the specialists in electronic pop. Annie Lennox and Aretha Franklin team up for a blazing duo on "Sisters Are Doin' It for Themselves." And Dave Stewart's guitar never sounded better. Also note Stevie Wonder's harmonica on "There Must Be an Angel."

FREDDIE MERCURY — Mr. Bad Guy (Columbia) — Big man of song for Queen steps out on his own for first time and, as the title song implies, delivers some real mean rock, softened now and then with a pop ballad. Queen might be in its twilight years, but there's still a large group of fans out there for both the band and its lead singer.

HIGHWAYMAN — Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson (Columbia) — Willie's still bashful — been hiding in a group or a duo for a long time. But what a group this one is! Hard to recall when, or if, that much country talent has performed on the same album. Maybe next up for Willie will be Gene Autry and Roy Rogers.

EARL KLUGH — Soda Fountain Shuffle (Warner Bros.) — Virtuoso acoustic guitarist Klugh plays like it is one of the easiest things in the world to do, seemingly without effort — the sign of a true artist. LP shows off his usual seamless blend of jazz and pop.

The Bonners make public appearances

The Bonner Family, the first black family of country music was greatly received by fans all over the country at fan fair in Nashville, Tenn. While signing autographs all day long they still made these shows: June 10, Nashville Now, TNN; June 11, Talk of the Town, Channel 5; June 12, a two-hour special for Channel 17; June 13, they performed for the IFEO show, at the Ernest Tubbs Memorial Picnic. They were the guest of Box Car Willie at the Nashville Palace and they performed at four other night clubs. They were also interviewed by WSM radio and they were on the news in Nashville.

July 5 and 6 they will be with Lacy J. Dalton in Riverside and Pico Rivera. July 21 they will be in San Diego for the CCMA award show and July 27 they will be in Washington to perform for a private party for approximately 400 airline executives.

Their new album has just been released on O.L. Records label, titled, "Finally."

show, a dress your pet show, demonstrations in taxidermy and hobby displays will be featured.

The program ends on Aug. 14, with an awards ceremony for the reading game participants set for Aug. 15. "All of the programs are paid for by the Friends of the Upland Library," Rooth said. One of the computers available for the youngsters is also a gift from the Friends.

Additional computers have been lent by Upland School District for this year's reading program.

"We included the computers primarily to help children with their computer literacy," she said. "Even though most of them have computers at their school, sometimes their time is limited. This year's reading game will not only provide fun, structured reading, but hands-on computer experience."

The reading games were designed by Rooth and the computer program was designed by another member of the Upland Library staff, Pat Castenadas.

The summer reading program game hours are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Thursday and noon to 3 p.m. on Friday through Saturday.

"The reading game is fun for us to work and we have kids who come back to play each year," Rooth said. "I'd like to encourage parents to spend some of their time and willingly share their reading or their child's reading progress in a positive way this summer."

At Rancho Cucamonga Branch Library, 9191 Base Line Road, this year's summer program features a Reading Club and for children not old enough to read, a Read To Me Club.

"It's essential reading skills to keep up reading over summer; besides it gives them something better to do than sitting around the house," she said. "And it can help them in their school work later."

The Rancho Cucamonga library sponsors several programs for youngsters. "On Monday, we have 'Monkeying around' from 11 to noon for 8 to 13 year-olds," said Joyce McMaster, children's librarian.

On Tuesday, fun and games on tap, along with crafts, for the summer readers, from 12 to 1 p.m. and on Wednesday, movie entertainment for the entire family will be shown on the library's giant screen television at 1 p.m.

Thursday mornings is pre-school storytime for children, ages 3 to 7, from 11:30 a.m. to noon. The library may also have storytime from 11 to 11:30 because the program is popular.

McMaster said the library will also sponsor special events for youngsters. "On July 19, on Friday, from 10 a.m. to noon, we'll be having a workshop on special effects, mostly for teens," McMaster said. The program is offered for those age 10 and older.

In August, the Rancho Cucamonga Library is planning to hold its annual Teddy Bear picnic for adults in the community as well as youngsters. "We'll have games and crafts and different things," the librarian said.

Any kind of "Teddy" stuffed animal may be brought to the picnic, McMaster said. The Teddy Bear picnic will include awards given to the Oldest Teddy, a Teddy costume contest, a Teddy/owner look-alike contest.

Supplies for the crafts and some bookmarks are supplied by the library, McMaster said.

She attended the University of Southern California. "That was a completely different experience for me. I had gone to a small college where everyone knew everyone else. Here, if I were on a different part of the campus, I was lucky if I recognized a familiar face."

After her time at USC, Rooth worked as a consultant for small medical libraries throughout Los Angeles County. "I did a lot of driving and sometimes as I was on my way home I'd think wouldn't it be nice to work here (Upland Library)."

She started working in the reference section on a part-time basis and worked to full-time gradually. "When the children's librarian left and they asked me I wasn't sure. I had very little experience in children's section."

Rooth, who is no longer married and has no children, had never worked with children before. "I surprised myself and I took to it like crazy. I really love my job."

Looking back on her family background, she said, she realized that she might have been headed into working with children because of the role model members of her family in the Boston area who were involved with children. "My great aunt was a schoolteacher and then a principal for 49 years ... she completely devoted herself to children and children's work."

Rooth is often found during the school year making visits to Upland classrooms. "I usually take the new (children's) books home and read them, you have to be on top of the new stuff," she said. "If I don't know the book or if I haven't read it and give a good book talk, they (the students) can tell, they can see right through you."

Rooth has been working as the children's librarian for about two and a half years. "The kids are everything to the job. I get to experience them at so many different stages, ages and phases."

She's developed the summer reading program for youngsters at the library this year. "But nothing can top last summer!"

The theme was the Olympics and the excitement of having it right in our own backyard was wonderful." □

DINING GUIDE

This Week's Featured Restaurant:

COUNTRY PRIDE RESTAURANT

Country Pride Restaurant is located at 4325 Guasti Road in Ontario. Easy to spot Country Pride can be seen directly south off the I-10 Milliken exit.

The Ontario restaurant is just one in the Great American Truckstop Chain now numbering 43 nationwide.

A busy center, it includes the large restaurant, a Burger King, snack bar, general store, a quiet spot, television room, convenience store and gas station.

Friendly employees, fast service and good hearty food has made the restaurant a success during the short two years since its opening.

Decorated in woods and greenery, the red booths both large and small are attractively arranged creating a comfortable family atmosphere. Counter seating is also available.

John McGraw, manager of the Country Pride Restaurant has set a high standard for himself, his restaurant and his employees. Says Mr. McGraw, "My employees are experienced; some having been with Country Pride since it opened. This experience and loyalty is reflected in our service and in our food."

Open 24 hours the restaurant can start your day with a delicious breakfast whether your day starts at 6:00 a.m. or 6:00 p.m.

For the hungry eaters the Paul Bunyan plate includes a generous portion of smoked sausage and three eggs any style, served with piping hot breakfast potatoes, Texas Toast and jelly.

The House Favorite is a quarter pound ham steak, two farm fresh eggs, breakfast potatoes, Texas Toast and jelly.

If you're not quite that hungry, but still desire a delicious breakfast then you need to order the Lite Bill of Fare. With two eggs any style, breakfast potatoes, Texas Toast, jelly and chilled juice it's a great way to start your day.

Also offered are pancakes, french toast, omelettes, corned beef hash, grits, biscuits, and gravy.

Country Pride knows how to make country gravy and country home style biscuits. Top them with two farm fresh eggs and serve them with piping hot breakfast potatoes and you have the Country Pride "Deluxe."

The Country Pride menu offers a large selection of lunch and dinner items.

Appetizers at Country Pride include baked potatoe stuffed with chili and cheddar cheese, a deep fried vegetable plate which includes breaded zucchini and mushrooms with batter dipped onion rings. A deep fried cheese plate is a unique but tasty combination of Swiss, cheddar and jalapeno cheese. Both plates are accompanied with a spicy sauce.

There are other dinner favorites including ham, pork chops, chicken, liver & bacon and a delicious homestyle beef stew and biscuits. The beef stew is prepared daily in the Country Pride's kitchen with tender tips of beef and fresh vegetables, then simmered to perfection and served over homemade biscuits.

For seafood lovers; clams, shrimp and fish fillets are served with golden brown french fries, creamy cole slaw, lemon wedge and a warm roll.

Country Pride's lite plates include a chef, tuna and taco salads and a "CCC". The "CCC" is a deep fried chicken fillet served with creamy cottage cheese and sliced cling peaches.

Besides the regular menu Country Pride offers many daily specials. The definite favorite is the Country Pride buffet which is served 11:00 a.m. through 9:00 a.m., six days a week. The all you can eat buffet includes two types of meats, vegetables and salad bar.

Desserts are scrumptious at Country Pride. Freshly baked fruit and cream pies are offered daily. A must to try is their famous hot apple dumpling drenched in cinnamon sauce and then topped with a generous portion of rich creamy vanilla ice cream. And right now Country Pride is serving their "Berry Good" desserts.

Country Pride is open 24 hours, 7 days a week. They accept Visa, Master Card and American Express.

PHOTO TIPS

By Holt Confer
Copley News Service

With manufacturers using computers to assist in the multitude of mathematical calculations needed to design useful, high-quality lenses, there really aren't a whole lot of photographic situations that can't be handled by the proper piece of equipment.

Sometimes there are lens choices to be made based on the photographer wanting to create a special "look" or unique effect, but setting those special cases aside, there is usually a "right" lens choice for most photographic situations.

"But," you may ask, "how do I know what lens is correct for the picture I'm about to take?"

Good question! What I'm going to tell you, though, can't be chiseled in stone simply because with a creative medium like photography it's always important to leave the door open to accommodate several correct, but somewhat conflicting, viewpoints. However, if you keep the information we're about to discuss in the back of your head, chances are you'll get very close to making the proper lens choice just about all the time.

First of all, PAY ATTENTION TO THE WHOLE FRAME. There is much more to the picture than what appears in the center of your viewfinder. Run your eye around the frame to find out if there are things that should be eliminated (in which case you might want to use a longer focal length), or if there are things that should appear, but don't (then you'll want to try a lens with a wider angle of view).

While you're looking through the viewfinder, you'll want to think about items that are not in keeping with the message you're trying to convey. For example, if you're photographing people and they are barely visible, you should be thinking about either moving in closer or changing to a long focus lens. Conversely, if the object you're trying to put on film extends out of the frame and it's inconvenient to move farther away from your subject, then it's time for a lens with a wider angle of coverage.

Then there's a problem with keystone. Keystone is when the parallel lines in your picture begin to converge. It's something that happens frequently when buildings appear in a photograph.

When I photograph buildings, first of all, I use a tripod so the camera isn't subjected to inadvertent body movements. Second, I carry a small level to make certain the front of the camera is perfectly vertical and the bottom of the camera is horizontal. And third, I probably will take the picture with a shift lens (sometimes called a perspective control lens), which permits both vertical and horizontal adjustments, expanding the viewing angle without changing the position of the camera.

When you select a wide-angle lens for your picture, keep in mind the lens will put a lot of visual information into the frame, but everything will appear smaller. Under these conditions it's quite easy to soften the impact of your subject, simply because it suddenly gets lost among all the other elements in the picture. Most successful wide-angle photographs will have one or more large, distinct shapes in the foreground to keep the viewer's eye from wandering aimlessly around the frame searching for a point of interest.

On the other hand, if you find a telephoto lens is needed to create the type of picture you want, then it's important to be aware of the idiosyncracies of this lens group — magnification, shallow depth of field and a compressed sense of space.

Of course, the advent of high-quality zoom lenses has made selecting the proper focal length a whole lot easier — since one lens easily can take the place of half a dozen individual units. Nevertheless, using a zoom lens still requires careful attention to the details we've been discussing. Even though you're carrying less weight, you can't overlook the principles of good composition.

Approach animal hit by auto cautiously

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. Recently I had the unfortunate experience of witnessing our neighbor's dog being struck by a rapidly moving automobile. Fortunately the dog was not seriously injured, since neither the driver nor I knew what to do.

I want to be more knowledgeable if there is a next time. What should one do for a dog or cat hit by a car?

A. Witnessing an accident such as you did can be a most frightening experience. It is even more stressful when you don't know how to help the animal.

One of the most important things to remember when dealing with an injured animal is that it probably is frightened and confused. Even normally docile, friendly animals may bite or scratch the person trying to help them. Therefore, it is extremely important to keep your own safety in mind when aiding injured animals.

When approaching a dog or cat that has just been struck by a car, move slowly and speak to the animal in a quiet, reassuring voice. Placing a muzzle or makeshift bandage, such as a scarf or belt, around the animal's mouth may prevent your getting bitten.

If the animal is bleeding profusely, place a tourniquet between the wound and the heart. The tourniquet should be loosened every 10 to 15 minutes for a short time.

If the tourniquet cannot be placed properly or if the bleeding is not profuse, a pressure bandage over the wound usually will control the hemorrhaging. If bandages are not available, almost any clean cloth can be used. Simply place the cloth over the wound and apply even, steady pressure with your hand.

An injured animal usually can be moved by sliding it onto a coat or blanket. By holding the corners of the blanket or coat, the animal can be moved as if on a stretcher.

If a veterinarian is relatively close by and the animal is not unruly, it probably is best not to try to splint legs or fractures. Simply move the animal to the veterinarian's office as quickly and carefully as possible. Try to keep the animal as quiet as you can so that it does not injure itself further.

If transportation to a veterinarian is delayed, any obvious fractures should be splinted.

RELIGION

By Rev. Lee Truman
Copley News Service

If you haven't noticed lately, there are more people than ever before. The world's population has more than tripled in the past 70 years.

And like it or not, the majority of us are caught in a situation where we not only live next door to people, we rub elbows with them at work, drive temper to temper with them on the freeway going to and home from work and then wait in line with them for our evening's entertainment.

This can be a crisis for a person who does not like people. But for the person who dislikes practically everyone, it can be the road to sickness and a boiling sea of unhappiness. Think about the person who does not like his congressman, whom he has never met, and the neighbor whom he wishes he had never met. Think about the soul who has nary a kind word about a solitary mortal and can only make derogatory pronouncements flow in a flood. That person is in a difficult situation because he is in solitary isolation most of the time — inside his self-made shell.

But in this world, living in an organized society requires giving as well as taking. Dick Larstan was an assistant manager of a large processing plant. He was having sick headaches, nausea and at times became so weak he could not stand up. His doctors gave him a clean bill of health after an extensive stay in the hospital. Dick's symptoms were most intense when he was in his office, an office he shared with a man he could not stand to be around.

I found that Dick had almost never liked anyone in his life. He had always been at odds with his father. He had a running feud with one brother, and did not speak to the other. He despised his sister and her husband, in particular. When I asked him, he could not even say that he liked his wife. His hangup was that he just did not like people in general and anyone close to him in particular.

Dick was surprised when his painful symptoms began to disappear after he forced himself to write down for me every good quality he observed in people around him. He had blank pages for a long time. After he was able to bring himself to put down one or two general things such as "friendly" or "honest," he would become aware of several more. After a month he began putting down a few items about the man with whom he shared the office. This was his breakthrough.

The point is to always listen closely to a person's pet peeve because he is telling you more about himself than he ever meant to reveal. It is an excellent index to the extent of his maturity, and when a person says he can't stand those who chew gum, click their teeth or whistle off tune, he is saying he has a maturity problem. He is a self-centered person with the acceptance level of childhood.

Such a person is in his well-made shell. Because such people have few — if any — satisfying relationships with anyone, and because they are not mature enough to blame themselves, they simply blame others. Finding they are isolated

Fourth of July parade planned

Alta Loma's famous Men's Lawnmower Precision Drill team will battle the women's Best Old Mother Hubbard Marching Band for the attention of spectators during the 10th Annual Citation Court July 4th Parade and BBQ.

The parade will begin at 3 p.m. on Independence Day at 8993 Citation Court in Alta Loma.

Prizes will be awarded for the best 4th of July theme costume during the parade, and later for the winners of games including egg toss, volleyball, water balloon toss, and swimming.

The barbecue will feature "Ernie's Famous Barbecued Barons of Beef." Participants are asked to bring their own beer.

The cost for the barbecue is $10 per family (more than two people) or $4 per person.

Money and reservations must be submitted to the event's organizers by June 28. Reservations may be made by calling Porshe Arutunian at 987-5978.

people, they have the choice between feeling pity for themselves or feeling martyred, which only increases the problem. This is where the ill health comes in. As their attention turns more and more inward, the muscle twinge is a major fire alarm. Such people lead miserable lives, both physically and mentally.

The mature person likes living and people and is a part of the human enterprise. The greatest pleasure known to us mortals is no great secret. It comes by giving pleasure. To make things a little better for our neighbor, the guy who works at the next bench or to the people who may live under the same roof with you is what makes any day brighter and puts the spring in all of our steps.

The truth few have realized is that there is no longer any such thing as a true individual in our culture. We may emotionally isolate ourselves but we still live in communities and are very interdependent on each other. If all of us were put absolutely on our own with only our own resources without the material, knowledge and services of our fellow people, I dare to guess that there would be only a handful who would be alive at the end of one year.

Entering our social structure with purpose and effort, and coming into this human enterprise of bringing out of the horns and halos of the human mind order and purpose, is an important element in maturity and, finally, in our own life pleasure.

STAMPS

By Lea Blauvelt
Copley News Service

The USPS paid homage to Abigail Adams, the first fully emancipated woman in American history, when they released a 22-cent commemorative stamp in Quincy, Mass., on June 14. She was the wife of John Adams, the second U.S. president, and the mother of John Quincy Adams, the sixth president.

It was Abigail who wrote to her husband, while he worked for independence at the Second Continental Congress, "I long to hear that you have declared an independency — and by the way, in the new Code of Laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would Remember the Ladies, and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of Husbands. Remember all Men would be tyrants if they could.

"If particular care and attention is not paid to the Ladies, we are determined to foment a Rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by any Laws in which we have no voice, or Representation."

It is regretful that neither John nor the Congress took her advice to heart. While they were writing the Constitution they missed a golden opportunity to acknowledge the equality of men and women. However, Abigail's letters, when published, had an effect on the rebellion she forecast.

Born in 1744 at Weymouth, Mass., she received no formal schooling, but her broad-mindedness and intelligence found ample outlets. She supported her husband's insistence on Colonial independence and added zest to his cause. While he was in Philadelphia working for the cause, she supported herself and their four children. Her letters were a source of inspiration to John and a source of information to us today.

The stamp was designed by Bart Forbes and shows Abigail in profile, facing left, with her signature above and "USA 22" in the lower right-hand corner.

To secure first-day cancellations, purchase the stamps at local post offices, affix to addressed envelopes and forward to: Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Abigail Adams Stamp, Postmaster, Boston, MA 02205-9991.

If you want the USPS to affix the stamps, send 22 cents for each to be used (in check form only) to the address above, but making two changes. Delete "Customer-Affixed Envelopes" and change the ZIP code to 02205-9992. Postmark all orders no later than July 14.

Upland's Faye Frazier blasts the ball from a sand trap during recent tournament action at Upland Hills Country Club. Frazier was among the UCC Women's Golf Association members playing in their weekly Thursday tournaments.

Upland Legion squad has busy schedule

Idle for more than week, Upland's American Legion team returns to District 25 action this evening on the road against rival Ontario at John Galvin Park.

Manager Ray Baker's squad (which hosted Arcadia in a non-district game Wednesday night at Memorial Park) is 4-2 in district action. Recent games against Chino and San Bernardino were postponed until later this season for various reasons.

Following the contest with division rival Ontario, Upland crosses over to the other division for games Friday and Sunday. Upland will host Montclair Friday night at Memorial Park and will travel to Corona on Sunday.

Rancho Cucamonga leads the Southern Division with a 7-3 mark, two games ahead of Upland.

Dave Compton and Matt Young are among the leading batters for the Upland squad. Compton entered the week's play with a .462 average, while Young was stroking the ball at a .344 clip.

Young and Tom Vondran led the team in base hits with 11 apiece, one more than Bobby Sheridan and two more than Steve Vondran, Jesse Maldonado and Rick Davis. Davis, however, is the team's extra base hit leader.

Steve Vondran is the home run leader with two.

Upland will also host the annual Fourth of July Tournament at Memorial Park beginning Friday, July 5.

Local academy produces state gymnast champion

By Charles Bentley

Paying your dues.

Talk with anyone in the world of sports, and they'll define the term. In athletics, just like anywhere else, you have to pay your dues before you see action.

But while some athletes can struggle for years before they see any hard results, some are fortunate enough to hit paydirt early.

Take Michael Sanders, for example.

Three years ago, Sanders thought gymnastics was turning cartwheels and backflips, something to do in front of friends and at family picnics. Sure it was a sport, but what kind of sport.

Today, he not only knows the sport inside and out, he's an example for youngsters just starting out.

And he's just 17.

Sanders recently won the California State boys gymnastics all-around championship for Level III. For outsiders, that's like taking the intermediate title. Not bad for someone who, just four months ago, turned in a 4.2 on the horizontal bars. That's 4.2 out of a possible 10.

Sanders moved to Redlands from Texas (his father is a career officer in the United States Air Force) last January. After just getting interested in team gymnastics at his old high school in Austin, he found that Redlands High School has a fine program ... for girls only.

So now, almost every day, he has to make the trek from Redlands to the Southern California Academy of Gymnastics in Rancho Cucamonga. There, under the supervision of coach Charles Klumpp and assistant coach Jeff Hughes, he's honing his skills.

Is SoCal Academy that well known for its boys' program? Well, now that Sanders is involved, it is getting added recognition. But the choice of the RC organization wasn't on reputation alone.

You see, only SoCal and another group in Loma Linda offer a fully-equipped team program for boys in this region. The next closest option is Fullerton.

"It's about the only gymnastic place I can go," said Sanders, who just completed his junior year in high school. "I understand Redlands used to have a program, but not anymore."

"There are some boys programs (around the CIF-Southern Section), but not many," said Klumpp. "Most of those don't have all the regulation equipment. That's the problem, or rather, the choice. Enrollment is about 95 percent of the high school programs is girls, so that's why the money is spent and the emphasis placed on the girls."

Still, in just a short time, it would appear the SoCal Academy has turned a beginner into a champion. Master craftsmanship, right?

"We haven't created any miracle here," countered Klumpp. "Michael's positive attitude and his desire to become an accomplished gymnast, that's 90 percent of the battle right there. He's self-motivated. If we can spend the additional time with Mike during the summer, and if he gets certain profile moves on certain pieces of equipment, I would say that two years from now he will be pushing the elite level. That's the highest level of competition."

Not bad for someone who's a late entry in the gymnastics scene.

"The second semester of my freshman year in high school (in Austin), I had to take a P.E. class," recalled Sanders, "I thought gymnastics might be fun, but I really didn't know that much about it. I thought it would be great to learn a backflip and show off to my friends. I guess that got me interested."

Several years ago, the majority of American society didn't know what a male gymnast might look like. Frail maybe, the type of guy who just couldn't cut it in a real man's sport like football. But ever since the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, where team USA took the gold medal, it's been a different story.

"Since the Olympics, people understand. But they expect, you know, big muscles and that kind of stuff," admitted Sanders. "I read that in Kurt Thomas' day, everyone thought it was a sissy sport. Now everyone thinks you have to be super-strong."

Now no one is going to mistake this gymnast for a defensive tackle. But while his build is on the slight side, his scores at the California State finals were pure heavyweight class.

During the meet at the Glendale YMCA, Sanders turned that 4.2 on the horizontal bars into an 8.95, good enough for first place in the all-around competition. He also took first on the horse (8.6), second in floor (8.75), third on the vault (8.7) and fourth on the parallel bars (8.4). The only event he didn't place in was the rings (7.9).

"I was told I could do it," added Sanders. "Still, it was a big surprise."

"I don't think the other people expected Mike to win," said Klumpp, with a smile. "Mike was below the level of about six or seven other guys, but he really progressed over the last few months. His best progress just happened to come at the state meet."

There are still a few ifs' in Sanders' future. If he sticks with it. If his family doesn't move again (or at least moves to an area with a quality boys program). If he continues to improve. Maybe he can become a top collegiate performer. And maybe, just maybe, he might have a shot at the gold in 1988.

"To become a top gymnast, I'll have to stick around until I'm about 26. I have a lot of catching up to do," he said with a sigh. "It's hard to say, that's a long time, a lot of dedication. I just don't know right now."

There are still a lot of dues to be paid. But Sanders is fortunate. He now knows what he's paying for."

HOBBIES

Copley News Service

Ordering wine in a restaurant can be a practice worthy of hazardous duty pay.

In addition to bizarre selections of wine that I commonly see, there is high pricing to contend with. In addition, wine service in most places in the United States is naive at best, appallingly ignorant at worst.

Those havens of creativity where wine is treated intelligently but not snobbishly are rare indeed. More often, alas, wine is raised to a pedestal where it is all but unreachable. Restaurants that treat wine as a godlike nectar worthy of only those who can pronounce Vosne-Romanee make it inaccessible to the average person.

Instead of asking for the wine list (for fear of being ridiculed by a fatuous waiter), the average diner opts for a beer or coffee.

I can do little to improve the frustratingly stumblebum wine service around the country, but I may be able to improve a slight bit the wines that are offered.

Inadequate and poorly conceived wine lists are commonplace, but they don't have to be. Wholesalers usually have salespeople knowledgeable enough to make cogent suggestions. Wine tastings for the trade allow restaurateurs to try a range of items before buying.

No fine dining establishment should have a wine list of less than 10 items. My absolute minimum would be one sparkling wine, four white wines, a rose and four red wines.

If you think this is too many, think about this for a second: I know dozens of people who worry about the wine at a restaurant long before they worry about the food. They will peruse the wine list before looking at the menu. Their reasoning is that if a restaurant pays attention to the wine list, the food is likely to be better than average.

Here are a few suggestions I would like to see implemented at fine dining establishments:

- Have at least three sparkling wines. One could be an inexpensive bulk-process champagne that can be sold for $6 to $7, so people on a budget may celebrate a special occasion. Have a California wine made by the French methode champenoise. A wine chosen from among the following would be elegant: Culbertson, Iron Horse, Domaine Chandon, San Pasqual, Piper Sonoma, Korbel, Mirassou. None of these wines should sell for more than $25 in a restaurant.

The third sparkling wine would be a premium French wine, to offer people a range of styles. Producers such as Deutz, Perrier-Jouet, Bollinger, Laurent-Perrier or Pol Roger make excellent choices.

- Have at least three Chardonnays, one made in a lighter, crisper style (such as 1983 Ehler's Lane, 1982 Fenestra or 1982 Sterling); one made along the lines of the typical rich, buttery, oaky style some people like (such as 1982 Villa Mt. Eden), and one on the inexpensive side to appeal to the budget-minded (such as 1982 Christian Brothers or 1982 San Martin).

- Have at least two Sauvignon Blancs, one in a grassy style (1982 Dry Creek is an excellent choice), and one similar to a French Graves, with a lean austerity (I like the 1983 Brander).

- Have at least one good Riesling, such as the 1983 Jekel or 1983 Chateau St. Jean; one good Chenin Blanc (1983 Kenwood or 1983 Mondavi); one Gewurztraminer (1983 Phelps, 1983 Sebastiani or 1983 Rutherford Hill), and one generic white wine of good quality.

- In the rose category, I would have Simi's Cabernet Rose or Pedroncelli Zinfandel Rose.

- Among red wines, offer at least one good Bordeaux (I like Chateau La Lagune), two California Cabernets (such as 1981 Lakespring, 1979 Phelps, 1981 Beaulieu or 1981 Girard), two Pinot Noirs, a Zinfandel (try a Ridge), two Beaujolais (one from France, the other from California), and an Italian wine such as Chianti or Barolo.

Many restaurateurs have difficulty putting red wines on their wine list. They say red wines don't sell well. And it is true that at present less than one bottle in four sold in the United States is red.

However, studies show that as the price of a bottle increases, so does its chances that the wine will be red. That may be because red wine drinkers are more likely to buy wine than white wine drinkers.

One additional problem restaurants have: They tend to stock Cabernet Sauvignons that are too young, far from being ready to drink. They are astringent and some taste harsh at that early stage.

Pinot Noir is a marvelous wine to add to restaurant wine lists because it generally has lower astringency than Cabernets.

Moreover, the lightness and delicacy of fine Pinot Noirs can marry with a wide variety of foods.

Public Notice

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON A PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR THE AIRPORT AREA REDEVELOPMENT PROJECT OF THE UPLAND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AGENCY AND AN ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT RELATED THERETO AND OF THE ADOPTION AND AVAILABILITY FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION OF RULES IMPLEMENTING OWNER PARTICIPATION IN CONNECTION WITH SAID PROPOSED PLAN AND EXTENDING REASONABLE PREFERENCE TO PERSONS IN BUSINESS IN THE PROPOSED REDEVELOPMENT PROJECT AREA TO RE-ENTER IN BUSINESS WITHIN THAT AREA.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at 7:00 p.m. on July 8, 1985, at the Council Chambers of Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, California, a joint public hearing of the Council of the City of Upland and the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency will be held to consider a proposed redevelopment plan for the proposed Airport Area Redevelopment Project Area within the City of Upland, the specific boundaries of which are set forth on Appendix "I" attached hereto.

Generally, the scope and objectives of said proposed redevelopment plan are as follows:

The redevelopment plan for the Airport Area Redevelopment Project of the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency was prepared by said Agency and is in conformance to and controlled by the General Plan of the City of Upland and all other applicable federal, state and local laws and ordinances. The plan is based upon the Preliminary Plan already adopted by the Planning Commission of the City of Upland. The project covered by the plan, including streets, consists of approximately 193 acres. The objective of the plan is to eliminate blighting conditions in the project area by providing development incentives and public improvements of regional benefit, including sewer facilities, storm drain facilities and arterial streets, thereby mitigating underutilization of land caused by inadequate public facilities of a regional nature.

The redevelopment plan describes and depicts the project area, delineates development objectives and actions proposed for implementation thereof in the project area and delineates proposed public improvements. In addition, the plan covers methods for financing the project.

Any and all persons having any objections to said proposed redevelopment plan or who deny the existence of blight in the proposed project area, or the regularity of any of the prior proceedings, may appear before the Council of the City of Upland at the time, date and place set forth herein and show cause why said proposed redevelopment plan should not be adopted.

Notice is also given hereby that the Redevelopment Agency and the City Council will conduct a public hearing on an environmental impact report on the subject of said redevelopment plan at the time, date and place set forth above. Draft copies of said environmental impact report now are available at the Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, California.

Notice is also given hereby that the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency has adopted rules to implement the operation of owner participation in connection with said proposed redevelopment plan and extending reasonable preference to persons in business in the proposed project area to re-enter in business within the redevelopment area and that said rules are available for public inspection at the Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, California.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON A PROPOSED DEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR THE SEVENTH/MOUNTAIN REDEVELOPMENT PROJECT OF THE UPLAND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AGENCY AND AN ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT RELATED THERETO AND OF THE ADOPTION AND AVAILABILITY FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION OF RULES IMPLEMENTING OWNER PARTICIPATION IN CONNECTION WITH SAID PROPOSED PLAN AND EXTENDING REASONABLE PREFERENCE TO PERSONS IN BUSINESS IN THE PROPOSED REDEVELOPMENT PROJECT AREA TO RE-ENTER IN BUSINESS WITHIN THAT AREA.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at 7:00 p.m. on July 8, 1985, at the Council Chambers of Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, California, a joint public hearing of the Council of the City of Upland and the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency will be held to consider a proposed redevelopment plan for the proposed Seventh/Mountain Redevelopment Project Area

within the City of Upland, the specific boundaries of which are set forth on Appendix "I" attached hereto.

Generally, the scope and objectives of said proposed redevelopment plan are as follows:

The redevelopment plan for the Seventh/Mountain Redevelopment Project of the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency was prepared by said Agency and is in conformance to and controlled by the General Plan of the City of Upland and all other applicable federal, state, and local laws and ordinances. The plan is based upon the Preliminary Plan already adopted by the Planning Commission of the City of Upland. The project covered by the plan, including streets, consists of approximately 35 acres. The objective of the plan is to eliminate blighting conditions in the project area by providing development incentives and public improvements of regional benefit consisting of circulation system improvements, thereby mitigating underutilization of land.

The redevelopment plan describes and depicts the project area, delineates development objectives and actions proposed for implementation thereof in the project area and delineates proposed public improvements. In addition, the plan covers methods for financing the project.

Any and all persons having any objections to said proposed redevelopment plan or who deny the existence of blight in the proposed project area, or the regularity of any of the prior proceedings, may appear before the Council of the City of Upland at the time, date and place set forth herein and show cause why said proposed redevelopment plan should not be adopted.

Notice is also given hereby that the Redevelopment Agency and the City Council will conduct a public hearing on an environmental impact report on the subject of said redevelopment plan at the time, date and place set forth above. Draft copies of said environmental impact report now are available at the Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, California.

ORDINANCE NO. 1354
ORDINANCE OF THE
CITY COUNCIL OF THE
CITY OF UPLAND
AMENDING SECTIONS
3460.2, 3460.3 AND 3460.4 OF
THE UPLAND MUNICIPAL CODE RELATIVE TO UNCLAIMED PROPERTY

The City Council of the City of Upland does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION 1: Section 3460.2 of the Upland Municipal Code relative to Care and Restitution of Unclaimed Property shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 3460.2. Care and Restitution - All unclaimed property as above defined shall be kept by the police department, using ordinary care to keep the same safe and to protect the same from the weather. If an owner appears prior to three (3) months from the date the property came into the possession of the police department and offers reasonable proof of his ownership, and offers to reimburse the City for any storage charges incurred, the property shall be delivered to said owner upon his payment of the storage charges, if any.

SECTION 2: Section 3460.3 of the Upland Municipal Code relative to Period to be held of Unclaimed Property shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 3460.3. Period to be Held - All unclaimed property shall be held by the police department for a period of at least three (3) months, unless restitution has been made as aforesaid prior to sale or destruction.

SECTION 3: Section 3460.4 of the Upland Municipal Code relative to Notice; Sale or Destruction of Unclaimed Property shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 3460.4. Notice; Sale or Destruction - All unclaimed property held for a period of three (3) months may be sold at public auction, transferred to the Central Services Department of the City for sale, or designated by the City of Public Use. In the event that the item is to be sold at auction by the Police Department, said item shall be sold at said public auction to the highest bidder provided that Notice of such Sale shall be given by the Chief of Police at least five (5) days before the time fixed therefor by publication and published at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the County of San Bernardino. All proceeds which are received from the sale of the unclaimed property by either the Central Services Department or the Police Department shall be deposited with the City's Treasurer. In the event that the property has no value, it shall be destroyed and disposed of in an appropriate disposal area.

SECTION 4: If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance shall for any reason be invalid, such holding or holdings shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council has declared that it would have passed this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, be declared invalid.

SECTION 5: This ordinance shall be signed by the Mayor, attested by the City Clerk, and published in the Upland News in pursuance to the requirements of the California Government Code.
